

WEATHER SENDS STATESMEN INTO STRANGE CLOTHES

Ice Cream Suits, Soft Shirts, Tan Shoes and Other Unconventional Garb Replace the Formal Frock Coat.

BY BURTON K. STANDISH.

(Written for the United Press.)
WASHINGTON, July 11.—Summer days in the senate chamber. A hot, moist, sticky afternoon, without a breath of air stirring beyond the arm-length region of the electric fans. The crumpling, withering heat quivers among the hard red desks, rises malignant from the green carpet and rebounds from the walls. Hot weather, and the debate on minor bills and resolutions drags on.
A figure in white, from crown of hat to tip of toe, enters the democratic cloakroom. As his hat comes off, the long iron gray hair marks Sen. Vardaman of Mississippi, coolest of all the 95 members who are compelled to stay here through the summer. White duck suit, white shirt, collar and tie, white belt and hose, and shoes he is a refreshing oasis in this legislative inferno.
In the chamber are a dozen flannel and linen suits, an odd dozen pairs of white flannel or duck trousers, and here and there white shoes with dark clothing—evidence of the inroads that the temperature has made upon senatorial fashions. There remains a faithful group in correct black or dark blue—Gallagher of New Hampshire, Smith of Maryland, Johnston and Bankhead of Alabama, Bacon of Georgia, Goff of West Virginia, with occasional recruits. The rest either bravely flaunt their light raiment or the tropics or compromise in grays and light browns, with here and there a concession to laundered white waistcoats of broad expanse.
Even Sen. Lodge.
That crinkled linen suit blazoned with the red flowing tie protects the generous form of Newlands of Nevada. The other cream-colored one sets off Overman of North Carolina, and those neat white shoes, box and pants to the left are worn by no less a personage than the solemn McCumber of North Dakota. White flannel trousers have appeared on the boyish form of the erstwhile formally correct Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, who rises unashamed, without a vest, exhibiting the bosom of a black-and-white striped tie to the astounded gaze of his colleagues.
Curious turns of sartorial senatorial fancy. Jones of Washington has found a shirt and collar of robin's egg blue. Clapp of Connecticut, a saffron vest. Brandegee of Connecticut, wearing linen shoes and fighting for air, strolls into the republican cloakroom for ice water. Nelson of Minnesota, in alpine coat and hat, part of trousers that wouldn't tip the scales at more than a pound, steadies himself at the doorpost and then resolutely steps out to listen to the discussion of our relations with Mexico. Fall of New Mexico is talking, and Stone of Missouri, in gray silk coat, lies limply back in his chair, wiping his forehead. Bacon waves a broad palm leaf fan and carefully adjusts his choker collar before rising to ask a question.
Hot afternoon, and not a hope of coolness until night, and even the hope of a cool night in Washington springs only from the breasts of abnormally optimistic persons at this time of year. Reed of Missouri draws up his white flannels and glowers at a calendar; it is still two months before currency can be disposed of. Simmons walks out to the democratic cloakroom where coats are off, and Korn and Hoke Smith, Williams and Owen are smoking to forget the weather. The air is thick with smoke; every settler has its sprawling statesman; ice clicks as glasses passed around by waiters from the Capitol cafes.
Must Keep at Work.
New senators are discouraged, but they know the protest is a waste of words. Congress will stay in session until September. Hot days or cool, the old members remind them incessantly, the committee work and caucus wrangling and delays must go on, while Pres. Wilson sits sweltering at the White House keeping tab on congress determined to get the tariff pledges be redeemed by reduction of the tariff and currency legislation.
Congress may bend before the heat blasts of Old Man Sol but it dare not quit.

OLD SOLDIER FAILS TO REACH HIS HOME
James H. Richardson, Who Attended Gettysburg Celebration, Reported Missing.
INDIANAPOLIS, July 11.—James H. Richardson, 76, a veteran of the civil war and the hero of Gettysburg, is missing, having disappeared either at the battlefield, where he went to attend the semi-centennial reunion or sometime during the journey home. G. Curtis Richardson of Terre Haute, a son, Thursday appeared to the police and the governor to aid in the search for the veteran.
Some friends of the missing man assert that he was last seen when taken from a train in Indianapolis, July 3, and taken to a hospital while others say that part of his identification papers were found scattered on the train and in a depot at Cincinnati.

PROPOSES PROBE OF N. Y. CENTRAL LINES

Sen. Norris' Resolution Asking For an Investigation, Passes Senate and is Now Up to the House.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—An investigation by the interstate commerce commission of the financial operation of the New York Central lines was proposed in a resolution adopted by the senate. This action was taken without debate when the resolution was introduced by Sen. Norris of Nebraska.
The resolution, if concurred in by the house, would direct the commission first to investigate and report upon the issue by the New York Central and Hudson River Railway Co. of $167,102,400 worth of 4 per cent. mortgage bonds for the purpose of taking up 3-1-2 per cent. Michigan Central bonds amounting to $19,336,000; 3-1-2 per cent. Lake Shore and Michigan Southern bonds amounting to $90,578,400, and New York Central 4 per cent. debenture bonds, amounting to $97,188,000.
The commission would be asked to report whether the issue of the 4 per cent. bonds for 3-1-2 per cent. would not be an unwarranted and illegal capitalization of the railroad concerned, whether the purpose of the consolidation of the New York Central, the Lake Shore & Michigan Central would not be unwarranted and unlawful, and whether the increase in interest is necessary even if the consolidation be unobjectionable.

Sen. Norris was prepared to address the senate in support of his resolution. He did not do so because no one opposed it.
He had prepared data which he declared show that the 3-1-2 per cent. bonds in question do not expire for 85 years and that the exchange of 4 per cent. for 3-1-2 per cent. dollar for dollar, would saddle onto the lines an additional permanent debt, upon which shippers must pay rates equivalent to $45,773,620. He was prepared to call attention to the recent request of the New York Central upon the commission to be allowed to increase freight rates and had figures to show that the fixed charges of the New York Central amounted to 59 per cent. of the road's income as compared with about 26 per cent. for the Union Pacific, 29 per cent. for the Pennsylvania.

WARDEN OF SING SING FACES MANY CHARGES

Hundred Page Indictment Charging Him With Mismanagement Filed by Grand Jury.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 11.—A 100-page indictment charging mismanagement of the Sing Sing state prison, neglect of duty, failure to investigate complaints, and containing other allegations, was filed against John S. Kennedy, warden, by the Westchester county grand jury Thursday. Kennedy surrendered himself in the county court, where he gave bond in $10,000.
Kennedy gave convicts insufficient food, withheld from solitary prisoners the required daily medical attendance, did not properly clothe and shoe convicts, furnished them with unclean bedding and with damp blankets seldom washed, and compelled prisoners to wear clothing worn by other convicts without fumigating the garments, the indictment charges.

Six Hours A Day for Life!

This, at hard labor in a kitchen almost as hot and unhealthy as a boiler room, is the sentence which the woman who uses a coal range is working off.

"No Coal, No Ashes and Short Hours"

This, in a cool kitchen with more satisfactory cooking results and hot water when you want it, is the new order of things enjoyed by the woman who has an All-Gas Kitchen.

Quit "doing time." Stop at our store and see how the All-Gas Kitchen cuts down fuel expense and work. If this is not convenient, ask us to send a representative.
